The World's Most Populous Countries

As of July, 1970, 2.056 billion persons-56.6 percent of the world's 3.632 billion population-lived in Asia. Europe was next with 462 million (12.7 percent), Africa followed with 344 million (9.5 percent) and 321 million (8.8 percent) were in North America. The United Nations Demographic yearbook gives this list of the world's 20 most populous countries (all figures in thousands):

- 1. China, 759,619.
- 2. India, 550,376, Soviet Union, 242,768.
- 4. United States, 205,395.

Issues of Phantoms In addition, the Israelis have balked at talks so long as the United States withholds the sale of additional Phantom jet bombers that Israeli anthorities have said are needed to maintain their deterrent capability. State Department officials said that while they believed that neither Egypt nor Israel had closed the door completely on an interim agreement, it seemed clear in light of the recent public statements by hoth sides that in the next few weeks the principal focus of attention will be on the General Assembly debate. They said that the United States would take another look at the situation after the conclusion of the debate but there was a general mood around the department that Mr. Rogers's nine-month-long effort to promote an interim agreement had reached dead end.

At the White House, there was no comment on the situation, but in answer to questions, Gerald L. Warren, deputy press secretary, said that the United States continued to believe that a continuation of the cease-fire was in "the interest of all parties."

Al Capp Waives Morals Charges

EAU CLAIRE, Wis., Nov. 22 (AP).—Cartoonist Al Capp appeared in Eau Claire County Court today and waived a preliminary hearing on morals charges.

The 61-year-old creator of "L'il Abner" asked through his uttorneys that his case be scheduled on the spring calendar of Circuit Court.

Judge Thomas H. Barland took Mr. Capp's request, but gave no indication how soon he would announce a decision.

The charges against Mr. Capp were filed by a married college coed. She accused him of sodomy, attempted adultery and indecent exposure concerning an al-leged incident on April 1 at his motel suite. He was in town for speech at the University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire. Mr. Capp has denied the accusation.

U.K. Will Probe Spy Accusation Against S. Africa

LONDON, Nov. 22 (AP).—The British government today agreed to investigate charges that South African diplomats and officials in London are spying on Britons and other people having ties with the republic.
The charges were made in the House of Commons by Liberal legislator John Pardoe, who said many South Africans attached to their London embassy are "no more than agents of the South African security service."

Joseph Godber, minister of state at the Foreign Office, said he was "not aware of any illegal activities in the United Kingdom by any South African officials," but he agreed to investigate.

A group of Laborite legislaters have raised the matter in the House of Commons on several occasions. They have accused Scotland Yard of cooperating with the South African Bureau of State Security.

Home Secretary Reginald Maudling mentioned the charges on Nov. 11 in the Commons. He said the cooperation is limited to crime and the protection of individuals and property.

A spokesman for the Laborite group said, "There is no longer any doubt in our minds about the size and scope of the work of BOSS in Britain. The South Africans have repeatedly contacted British security for formation about people who have broken apartheid-linked laws."

UN Official Tells Greek Police of New Drug Routes

Dr. Serge Sotiroff, heading a three-man UN technical commission, said Greece "is not yet a victim of drug abuse, but because drug-taking now affects all classes of society, all countries and continents, changes in the pattern of illicit trafficking have emerged."
Dr. Sotiroff, addressing a week-long seminar for high-ranking Greek police officers and members of the narcotics squad, said that in the past routes of illicit traffic were easy to outline, such as the one from the Middle East through southern France to North

But now new routes have been added from production areas to drug-consuming countries such as Germany, Scandinavia, the Netherlands, Belgium, France and Britain, Dr. Sotiroff said,

He said the route between Turkey and Northern Europe goes via Greece, Bulgaria, Romania and Yugoslavia, or Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Austria and Ger-by Col. Beaumont could only be former SDECE operative, in jair in New Jersey. The Beaumont development further complicates an affair which has been getting nastier almost daily.

Col Beaumont alleged today, as did Col. Barberot Friday, that the trouble stems from a wholesale housecleaning at SDECE which was carried out under President Georges Pompidou's hand-picked man, Alexandre de Marenches. Mr. de Marenches, whose mother is American, was an obscure businessman until Mr. Pompidou named him head of SDECE last year. He was brought in to clean up SDECE, following the scandal due to is complicity in the kidnapping of Moroccan leftist leader Mehdi Ben Barka in 1965,

Several SDECE men-among them Col. Beaumont- were fired immediately on suspicion of being double agents, for generally working in close Ganllist collaboration with Communist countries. Col. Beaumont, who according to Col. Barberot was suspected of "high treason," said at his press conference today that he was suing Col Barberot for one million francs

Col. Barberot's only reaction has been: "I didn't say what I said lightly."

Meanwhile, Mr. Stern continues to stir up this hornet's nest by insisting that somebody in SDECE was behind Delouette's attempt to smuggle 96 pounds of heroin into New Jersey in a miribus. This charge, which in light of the statements by both colonels does not appear to be beyond the realm of possibility, is being officially denied here. The official line still is that Delouette is trying to reduce his sentence by naming enyone .

Unofficial Line

But the unofficial line, which is given daily circulation to over a million readers by the newspaper France-Soir, is that Mr. Stern and the United States are out to embarrass and humiliste SDECE if not France.

France-Soir was told by French officials today that when Mr. Stern came over here this month to ask again that Col Paul Fournier, alias Ferrer, who replaced Col. Beaumont at SDECE, be brought to trial, the New Jersey attorney "irritated" the Frenchi with his "inquisitional" attitude At one meeting with French police officials, the newspaper said, U.S. Ambassador Arthur K. Watson, was "very distrubed" by Mr. Stern, and had to interrupt the meeting to calm him

Mr. Stern told the newspaper L'Aurore today that not only did he have proof of Col. Fournier's guilt, but that Delouette is trying to protect someone else. "I know the man's name," he told a French reporter, "but I can't tell you." He said it was not Harold MacNab, the French consulate employee in New York already named. which appeared to rule out that it was simply Delouette's girl friend, Marie-José Robert, 22 is whose apartment 17,400 counterfeit dollars were found last April. Paul Ferrer, Mr. Stern said that he had been assured by SDECE officials that the man's real name was Paul Fournier, Mr. Stern asked the judge what the man's real name is.

Col. Burberot, the former Free
French fighter who challenged the SDECE reforms Friday, still maintains that the likeliest ex-planation to the affair is that disgruntled SDECE officials sel, after it was learned that Col. Fournier's real name might be filled with bitter factions. Commenting in l'Aurore today, Mr. Stern said, "We are patient. We are waiting for French justice to do its job and decide to seriously prosecute Col. Fournier. But our patience is limited. If the French continue to play deaf and not do anything against Fournier, we will ask for his extradition." (Note: This has been retranslated from the French.) The French, meanwhile con-tinue to criticize Mr. Stern for keeping French officials from Delouette. Mr. Stern replies that Delouette's lawyer will not allow him to talk to French officials until his client has been granted immunity.

A "dialogue of the deaf," it is being called here.

U.S. Jazz Musician Ouestioned in Lisbon

Mr. Haydon was detained yesterday when he tried to leave on a flight to London, where he was

High Court Strikes Down Sex Bias State Law

By John P. MacKenzie

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22 (WP). -For the first time, the Supreme Court today held a state law unconstitutional as a violation of the rights of wemen to equal protection of the laws.

The court ruled, 7 to 0, that Idaho violated the 14th Amendment by prefetring a man over an equally qualified woman to administer an estate.

The decision stopped far short of the goals of civil liberties and women's liberation groups and immediately fueled both sides of the debate over a new equal rights amendment to the Constitution. Minutes after Chief Justice

Warren E. Burger delivered the court's unanimous opinion, the Senate Constitutional Rights Subcommittee failed to epprove an amendment passed by the House by a vote of 354 to 23 on Oct. 12. The subcommittee approved instead a substitute offered by Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D., N. C., which would forbid "an; legal distinction between the rights and responsibilities of male and female persons" but with this critical exception; "Unless such distinc-

U.S. Starts Anti-Trust Probe On Decline of Small Brewers

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22 (UPI) -Like nostalgie beer drinkers everywhere, federal anti-trust investigators are wondering whatever happened to some of the grand old brands of brew that vanished during recent years. In 1860, the year the Civil began, there were 1,269 breweries in the United States. Today there are one-fifteenth as many. Just since 1934, the number of brewing firms has shrunk from 725 to 76. The Federal Trade Commission investigating allegations that big brewers may be illegally muscling small ones through "predatory pricing"—the deliberate use of below-cost pricing to force competitors into the red and out of the market.

The decline in the number of firms could be all in the name of progress-which was, incidentally, brand of beer that went flat off the market during the past 10 years. Progress was quaffed in Oklahoma and Texas, a regional brand like most of the others that lost their heads since 1961. Also gone, among others, are beers with such fascinating brand names as Griesedieck Brothers of

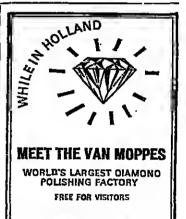

St. Louis, Tadcaster of Worcester, Mass., My Beer of Omaha, Neb., Wee-Willy of Marathon, Wis. Old Shay of Baltimore, 12 Horse Rochester, N.Y., Silver Bar Tampa, Fla., and Mug of Cincinnati. Civic pride falled to keep

Butte Beer of Butte, Mont., or Old Reading of Reading, Pa., afloat, and school spirit wasn't strong enough to keep Harvard of Willimansett, Mass. from taking a spill. The Senate lives-and most of its members aren't adverse to an occasional drink-but Senate Beer of Washington, D.C. is long gone.

Meanwhile, the big national brands have swallowed more and more of the market.

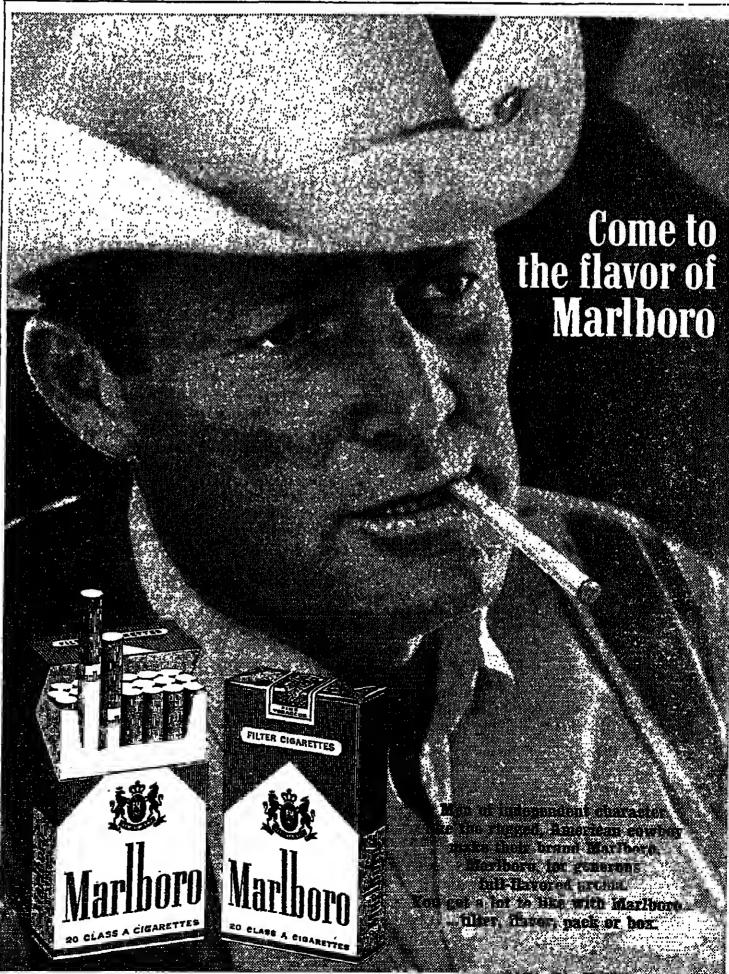

Americans quaff about four billion gallons of beer a year, an average of 18.6 gallons for every man woman and child According to Oppenheimer and Co., an investment firm, Anheuser-Busch (Budweiser) and Schlitz shared about 20 percent of the market in 1965, 30 percent in 1970 and may reach 40 percent in 1972.

"Over time, the national brewers will continue to grow larger while the weak regional and local brewers will continue on the path of decline and pass into oblivion, said Burnham and Co., another investment firm, in 1969.

Britain Plans State-Run Off-Track Betting

By Bernard D. Nossiter LONDON, Nov. 22 (WP),-British punters will soon be backing their fevorite pony-or dog, rugby team, boxer and almost anything else—in government-run betting parlors.

Under a bill introduced by th. Conservatives, the government will engage in nose-to-nose competition with the 14,000 private off-track betting shops that now operate legally here. If the Home Ministry's target is met, its new chain will gross $22.5 million of the estimated $5 billion wagered annually in

Franco Granddaughter Silent on Don Jaime

MADRID, Nov. 22 (Reuters).-The granddaughter of Spanish of state Francisco Franco refused to confirm here today reports that she will marry Don Jaime de Borbon, the duke of Segovia, 35, regarded by some monarchists as a possible pretender to the Spanish threne.

"There is nothing official," was all Meria del Carmen Martinez-Bordiu Franco, 20, would say to newsmen when she returned from n three-week visit to the United

The government's objective is simple: more money. The plan is designed to increase the subsidies for race tracks-private and public-and prize money.

Loudest Walls

The loudest wails, predictably, have come from the big bookles. A spokesman for Joe Coral, whose firm owns 400 betting shops, called the plan "a demal of elementary justice . . . We shall fight it with whatever resources are available." At William Hill, a chain of about 550, the word was "most unfair."

But Lord Wigg, chairman of the quasi-governmental Betting Levy Board, took a simpler view. 'I only hope that it can produce some lolly fast," he said.

Despite the protests, the gove nment figures the bill is an odds-on favorite to breeze through Parliament. They see it as a boon to the bettor, providing a yardstick that will restrain the increasingly concentrated private industry from short-changing customers.

The government already is modestly in the betting business. Its totalisator, or tote board, enjoys a monopoly of pool, or pari-mutuel, wagers on English horse racing tracks. But the tote board, operating offices at all 63 British courses, 30 tele-

Negotiations Hang in Balance

Smith Meets Cabinet, British As Rhodesia Talks Continue

SALISBURY, Rhodesia, Nov. 22 Foreign Office official who i (NYT). - The Anglo-Rhodesian talks hung in the balance tonight as Prime Minister Ian Smith of the white rebel government met with his cabinet. By all indications Mr. Swith knew he would have to make concessions on at least one vital point to save the talks. The British made it clear on Saturday that on that issue they could go

No details were given by either side, but it was known that the crucial issue involved numbers one and four of the five principles that Britain has laid down for a settlement with the Rhodesian whites. These are that there must be unimpeded progress toward eventual majority rule in Rhodesia, and that there must be immediate moderation of discriminatory laws, notably the Land Tenure Act that divides all land equally between the five mil-lion Africars and the 250,000

The talks broke off Saturday with the distinct possibility that the two sides would meet again today only to register their disnent and give up.

Two-Front Talks Instead, Mr. Smith apparently decided to negotiate on two fronts with the Erlish and with his own rightist Rhodesian Front party. At least the talks went on today and are expected to resume tomorrow. Mr. Smith had his cabinet in this morning, then he met for nearly two hours with Sir Alec Douglas-Home, the Foreign Secre-tary, and the British team. This afternoon he had the cabinet in again and then crossed the street from his own office to Parliament to continue talking with membe of his party.

The talks now seem to depend on Mr. Smith's judgment of how far his white electorate is willing to go in making concessions to the African majority. This was exactly the breaking point in Britain's two earlier efforts to settle with Mr. Smith after he declared Rhodesla independent in

The decision is likely to come tomorrow. Sir Alec and his colleagues have been here for eight days, an extraordinary length of time for a British foreign secretary to be conducting negotiations personally in a foreign country. It is regarded as doubtful that he would be willing tostay past Wednesday, although informed sources emphasized, that he has set no bard deadline.

Progress Made During the eight days, and especially in the last few days, there has been progress. But in addition to the one decisive issue on which the British would not budge, it is understood that there are numerous points still unsettled.

As is the habit in diplomatio regotiations, all the hard is he said that it was not clear are apparently going to be left whether they were the result of until the very end and either agreed together or forgotten in a breakdown of the talks. ...

The British Attorney General Sir Peter Rawlinson, who has been serving as No. 2 in the delegation, left today for London.

He had been planning all along to be back by tomorrow for legal business, but he is expected to give Prime Minister Edward Heath and the cabinet a first hand report of how the negotiations are going. The heaviest burden of the detailed negotiations has been carried by Lord Goodman and by the permanent under secretary of the British Foreign Office, Sir-Denis Greenhill. They carried on with Rhodesian officials this afternoon after the formal dipiomatic session recessed.

ATHENS, Nov. 22 (UPI) .-Joseph Luns, Secretary-General of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, said today he received a favorable response from the Greek government on the possibillty of a mutual and balanced reduction of forces in Europe.

He said he was able to give "firm assurances to the Greek government that the allies will see to it that such a process of reducing forces will not increase the dangers of the situation on the southern flank,"

Mr. Luns said the Greek government would be averse to force reduction in the central sector of Europe which might result in increasing dangers to the southern flank, which is already endangered by the strong presence of the Soviet fleet in eastern European watersas northern countries don't wish increase danger on the northern flank."

Although Mr. Eyskens asked for a short "pause for reflection" before giving the king a formal reply, observers felt there was little doubt that he would accept. The king's decision, two weeks

The election confirmed the parliamentary majority of the outgoing coalition of Social Chris-tians and Eocialists headed by Mr. Eyskens. The premier designate, who has headed four previous governments, appears to have changed his mind. But he probably will find his task more diffleult because of the local and national election results, observers said.

Yesterday's poll in Brussels and its outlying areas was held to fill seats on a newly created city council for the Belgion capital where local administration previously was carried out by 19 community authorities. Similarly, 86 communities on

Overall Majority The result of the Brussels elections was to give the extremist, French-speaking Front Democratique des Francophones (FDF), allied with a splinter Liberal group, an overall majority of 43 in the 83-seat city council.

In outlying Flemish-speaking areas of the capital-the city is a French-speaking enclave in Flemish territory-the Social Christians maintained their dominant position, but Flemish extremists made big gains.

The result of the vote could well exacerbate the language squabble between the two groups. Whatever happens now, observers said, it seems that the new government's program must take account of Brussels' implicit rejection of the previous cabinet's plan of constitutional and regional reform.

The basis of the plan, which had been specifically designed to take the heat out of the language war, is to arrive at a regional decentralization that falls short of federation. However, both the French and Flemish parties which gained most from yesterday's poll want Belgiam to become a federalized state.

Bandaids for the Subcontinent disastrous failure on the Indian subcontinent because it is attempting to treat a potentially mortal wound with bandaids.

While India and Pakistan move closer to all-out war, the world organization has been wrangling over relief measures for an estimated nine million refugees who have fled to India from East Bengal and for the 66-odd million Bengalis they left behind in that rebellious Pakistani province.

There is no question that the humanitarian needs of the East Bengalis, both those who have fled and those who have remained behind despite brutal military repression, have a heavy claim on the conscience of

But it is clear from the testimony of UN officials that relief assistance cannot alone solve the acute humanitarian crisis created by the upheaval in East Pakistan. Assistant Secretary-General Paul Marc Henry warned the other day that humanitarian efforts in East Pakistan, already gravely threatened by stepped-up military activities there, may have to cease altogether. Prince Sadruddin Aga Khan, the UN's high commissioner for refugees, stated that repatriation of the refugees who have fled to India offere the only "viable and lasting solution" to the present crisis.

In order to deal effectively with the humanitarian needs of the Bengalis it will he necessary to attack the root of the problem-the political crisis in Pakistan. It is

The United Nations is drifting toward a essential to press for a political solution in East Pakistan that will put an end to the fighting there and permit the refugees to return in safety.

The United Nations so far has avoided this central issue, although Secretary-General U Thant warned months ago that the situation on the subcontinent posed a threat to international peace—a prophecy that is now being borne out by a dangerously rising spiral of incidents along the Indian-Pakistani borders. Mr. Thant's efforts to mediate the conflict have been spurned so far by India on the grounds that they tended to equate India and Pakistan and to divert attention from the source of the troublethe repression in Pakistan. But Prime Minister Indira Gandhi has indicated that India would welcome United Nations intervention if it focused on this basic problem.

if the United Nations is to play an effective role for peace and rehabilitation on the subcontinent, the world organization must throw its weight behind mounting international pressures on Pakistan's President Yahya Khan to reach an accommodation with the elected leaders of East Pakistan, especially the imprisoned Sheikh Mujibur Rahman. Only in the context of a determined effort to promote a political settlement in Pakistan will the UN be able to move effectively to achieve a withdrawal of forces from the explosive Indo-Pak borders and to bring succor to the stricken Bengalis.

THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Foreign Aid in the Grinder

Foreign aid is now in the grinder of a Senate-House conference. The Senate, which killed the old bill, sent to conference two new bills, one economic and the other military. The House, in a rare maneuver, simply revived its version of the old billbut more as a bargaining platform than as a plece of legislation it intends to fight for. Each chamber seems to be miffed that the other wouldn't deal with the legislation emanating from it. Indeed, it will be interesting so see how the conferees fit together two bills with one; 96 differences were listed in their first meeting Friday afternoon. At this point the only thing to be satisfied about is that Sen. Fulbright withdrew his grotesque nomination of Sen. Mundt, who has been sick and absent for two years, to be a conferee and put on Sen. Cooper

The differences between Senate and House bills are too often expressed just in terms of money: $2.6 billion as against $3.4 billion. But the really significant difference lies in the Senate's determination, not shared by the House, to make the aid conference an arena in which to fight out its differences with the President over Vietnam. To that end, the Senate put forward a series of provisions whose purpose is to circumscribe executive flexibility in Laos, Cambodia and Thalland and to make it more difficult for the President to continue the war without trying to negotiate a phased prisoner release and troop withdrawal with Hanoi. The President probably can expect a fair measure of support from among the House conferees -Morgan, Zablocki, Hays, Fascell, Mailliard, Frelinghuysen and Broomfield. But look at the Senate's Fulbright, Mansfield, Church. Symington, Aiken, Cooper and Case.

We would hope that the conferees would not focus on the war issue so exclusively that they overlook the considerable number of damaging restrictions which, in particular, the Senate has attached to economic aid. One amendment apparently would cancel aid to any country that hadn't finished paying satisfactorily for expropriated American property-a drastic step that would disrupt political and economic ties alike. Another amendment would raise the interest rate on development loans (Latin America excepted) to a level that the intended teneficiaries could not pay. Another provision would deny to population programs the financing priority they deserve. The problem here on the economic side is that the cause of enlightenment does not have the strong political patronage it will need to offset the provincialism, on this issue, all too prevalent among the Senate conferces.

Ultimately, of course, the future of ald legislation is up to the President. It must be said that his attitude so far has been disappointing in the extreme. White House lobbying has been confined to the military programs: the economic programs have been left to the lesser resources of AID and State. With these presidential priorities so transparent-Mr. Nixon said not a word for development in his speech to the AFL-CIO, for instance-its future is far from bright. Does the President really want the message to spread that he is less interested in the welfare and stability of the world's poor than he is in pouring on the coals in Indochina? If he means what he says about wanting to lead the country away from the pitfalls of neo-isolationism, here is the place for him to go to work.

THE WASHINGTON POST.

International Opinion

Thailand and Cambodia

Indochina is not only at war: It is going through a critical time. How could things be different, since it is broken up by a conflict with no end in sight and its leaders -except of course those in Hanoi-remain totally dependent on Washington and thus have to adapt themselves to American foreign policy variations, e.g., on Vietnamization or the visits to Peking. The anxiety voiced from Phnom Penh to Vientiane, from Bangkok to Saigon, when the U.S. Congress temporarily refused to pass the foreign aid bill tells a long story about the vital anchoring of these regimes to American power. . .

To support their allies and proteges, the Americans have available, besides their financial and material aid, formidable technological power, chiefly an air force. Mr. Nixon has sternly warned Hanol in this respect, and Mr. Laird just repeated the warning. Five aircraft carriers are cruising in the Gulf of Tonkin and hundreds of war planes are based in Thalland. Armed helicopters are launching attacks in the auburbs of Phnom Penh, B-52s are pounding sectors near the 17th Parallel, and raids against North Vietnam tend to become more and more numerous.

All elements are thus convened for another escalation. But pouring of bombs and shells is one thing; and having such's strategy accepted by millions of refugees, farmers who lost all their belongings or part of their families, and townspeople shocked by the shattering of traditional values is another, -From Le Monde (Paris)

Neo-Nazism

Neo-Nazism, never really much more in postwar Germany than a fringe phenomenon with a lunatic streak, has now gone from decline into atomization. This is the effect of the resignation of Herr Von Thadden from the leadership of the National Democratic Party_NPD. Any danger will now come not from the right, but from the left: not from militarism but from neutralism.

If Western Europe with the writing clearly on the wall, with only a few minutes to go before midnight, does not now rapidly unite and drastically improve its defenses; if American divisions are withdrawn and the gap is not made good; then Germany, exposed to the full Eastern blast, will be sorely tempted to make separate terms with Russia, with the aid of some handy rationalizations, and with reunification as a hait and a Russian trump. Herr Brandt's Ostpolitik is an early warning.

The question is becoming pretty urgent, because the Boviets have just successfully completed another round of tests of their antisatellite satellites. The sole imaginable purpose of these tests is to get ready to destroy the reconnaissance satellites by which the United States—for too seldom for reasons of economysurveys the progress of Soviet military development.

If the American reconnaissance satellites are ever destroyed in dire fact, this country will be literally blinded. "Humintell," which is what "human intelligence" or intelligence from agents, is now called in the busi-ness, has dwindled to almost

Vital Data

Our most vital data about deployments and developments inside the Soviet Union therefore come from the recommaissance satellites. These began to fly in November, 1980. The Soviets conducted the first launch of a component of their unti-satellite ponent of their anti-satellite system in 1963. Since then, there have been repeated launches of components of the system. More recently, there have been four complets operations involving the destruction, or attempted destruction, of a "drone" or target satellite. Two were conducted this year, one a good many months ago, and one quite recently.

If expenditure is any symptom of intention, the numbers of launches and operational tests mean that the system is "more for use than show," in the words of the historian Gibbon. For the United States to have carried development and testing so far, the needed investment would have been well above 42 billion.

The simple character of this costly Soviet anti-satellite system also worth careful thought. Shooting down a reconnaistance satellite with an ABM-like missile having a nuclear warhead is neither difficult nor costly. Interceptions without repeated operational tests. Satellite interception with mis-siles having nuclear Warheads would have been a gross breach of Soviet treaty commitments. It might even have waked up this fiscoidly somnoient country. Hence a very large part of the huge expense of the Soviet antientellite system results from the simple fact that no nuclear warhead is employed. In a complete operational test, a "drone" target satellite is first blasted

As the drone-satellite comes round, a command-satellite is then blasted into position close to the drone, which the commandsatellite has means of locking onto. Finally, a "chase" or de-stroyer satellite is sent up. It is ordered into correct position by the instruments on the command satellite, And it thereupon explodes near enough the target satellite to put the latter out of

When the first operation of this kind was run by the Soviets, it was interpreted in reverse by the more wishful members of the intelligence community. It was said to be a mid failure, because the troyer satellite had blown up while the target satellite continued on its course.

Hit by Pellets

In fact, as is now known. target satellite was badly hit by the pollets that the explosion of the destroyer satellite is designed to expel. As the target was a mere drone, this made no visible ditference. But if the target had been a true recommaissance satellite, the damage to complex and vulnerable instrumentation would have caused instantaneous blind-

So there you have the evidence, except for two items. In the SALT talks, the Soviets themselves have proposed a treaty-clause that would seem to forbid what they have been investing so much to be able to do. The United States, meanwhile, long ego abandoned its anti-satellite program, although Soviet satellites could now be brought down with Spartan missiles using the nuclear warhead that was belatedly proven in the famous Cannikin test.

The evidence is hard to read. Yet in such cases, it is exactly like playing Russian roulette to base national policy on the hope that preparations, especially very expensive preparations, never re-

White Rhodesians of all kinds make the argument of African incompetence when they explain why they are so totally opposed to majority rule in the foresecable future. Even those who say that Africans should have better education and job opportunities tend to be skeptical about their ability to keep up, to run a business or

Of course, the economic motive should not be overlooked. A Scottish carpenter who came to Rhodesig after the war and can afford servants and a house in the country is not an unbiased witness on the question of maintaining

Real Passion

But white Rhodeslane are not consciously evil any more than most people. They are desperately sincere when they say that the country would be ruined if turned over how to untrained Africans. l'here is real Di talk about their fathers and themselves having created Rhodesia's real wealth—the farms and the mines. And there was courage in standing up to world economic pressure when men as supposedly shrewd as Harold Wilson gave them weeks, not months, to survive.

The trouble is that the white Rhodesian belief, however sincere, s so imperfect, so blinkered a view. To start with, it ignores the fact of messive discrimination that faces any African of ability. In a country that spends about as much every year for education of the white 5 percent of the population as of the black 95 percent, who can say what the Africans would do if given equal opportunity?

Or consider what happens to those who do get higher educa-tion. A lecturer at the univer-sity, white, told of a young African who never had a chance at secondary school but managed to teach himself enough to pass the examinations for university admission. He was slow at first, then detectably better every month. Now he is a self-made trlumph—but there is little chance using that ability in the kind of work open to Africans. It is true that Rhodesia now is remarkably efficient country, well-run in terms of services. The telephones work, the streets are wide and clean, the roads are among the best in Africa.

Forever? -

But suppose the whites are right, and African rule would mean less efficiency, more confusion and corruption. Does it follow that five million Africans should continue to be ruled by 250,000 whites forever? No. There are things in life, in moral life, more important than having the trains run on time.
It may well be that German business men and trade unionists are more efficient than their British equivalents. But no one would think that such a com-parison could justify putting selected Germans in charge of British industry. The British are entitled to make Britain the kind of country they want, even though some outsider may be able to show that they would really be more comfortable if it were run another way.

That is the canker in white dominance of an overwhelmingly black country. Even if one assumes that the white Rhodesians can make the country more productive for all, and agrees that it is their country as well as the blacks, they can impose their rule not by any moral superiority but only by naked force,

Bread-and-Butter Issue

Labor Against Nixon Over Economic Police

By Joseph Kraft

MITAIN BEACH. - Before the that would go into amound derway here in Mismi Heach, two delegates were epeculating on the possibility Freedent Mison might drop in. One said: "If he does, we should walk out of the hall." The other replied: "If we do, we hand him the 1972 election on a platter."

That exchange expresses the central thems of what has been happening here at the labor con-vention. The unions, mindful of their unpopularity, have been bending every herve not to give the President an issue he can use against them to win the 1972

At the same time, they are con-centrating all their energies on the one issue they are certain is a winner. That is the bread-and-butter issue of economic policy.

Important Decision

One sign of this pattern was the most important decision made by the convention. That was the decision to continue participation in the wage and price control mechanism of President Nixon's new economic policy. Labor is staying fit precisely because, as AFL-CIO president decree Meany put it in would enable the President to make lebor the suspensed for the failure of his economic policy. A second sign was the hand-ling of the demand, voiced by some of the smaller unions, for a general strike to achieve retrosotive raises on contracts that had been nullified by the wage freeze. Mr. Meany met with about a dozen members of these unions just before the convention began. When the meeting was over, there was no more talk of a general strike. A third sign came in the handling of a demand by the Chleago black leader, Jesse Jackson, that labor "go to the streets" in support of poor people end unorganized workers. If that issue had been embraced, labor would have been stuck with a truly unpopular cause. But Mr. Jackson. was brushed off with the comment that the convention was too busy to hear him.

Then there was the way Mr. Meany made it known that President Nixon would be coming to the convention. He buried the news as a routine announcement among some introductions of various "fraternal delegates" from abroad. The message was delivered deadoan, with all the emotion coming visit by, say, the her druggists' union. It was a vitation not to confide to yawu.

Mrs. Oberndorf, a native of Peoria, had served for a few years as society editor of a Peoria paper until her marriage to Harry Goldstein, a number of years her senior and the owner of a succesaful local jewelry store.

Although Mrs. Oberndorf had enjoyed working, there was no question about continuing once she got married, and she threw herself instead into charitable works and helped her husband in the store during rush seasons. FOOD.

The Andouillette—Both a Cult and a Sausage

By Waverley Root

DARIS (IHT) Jumping Intily to conclusions, most French dictionaries have assumed that wben a diminutive suffix was added to the word andouble, meaning a tripe sausage, it meant that andoullette was simply a small andouble, and they so

One gathers that compliers of dictionaries do not look into foodshop windows. No one who saw andouilles and andouillettes displayed side by side would guess that they were related, unless he happened already to know their names or their content.

Both, it is true, are French tripe sausages. But there the rescublance ends. Andouille is short and thick, andoustitte is of smaller diameter but so long that it is often rolled up like a length of garden hose, from which the amount you require is cut off. Andouille is hard, like salami; andouillette is ilmp. Andouille is already cooked, ready to be sliced and eaten without further treatment. Andouillette has been posched barely long enough to preserve it, and has to be cooked further before serving. Andoville is most often eaten cold, as hors d'oeuvre; andouillette is almost invariably eaten hot as a main dish. And while there are infinite variations in the making of both, depending on where ther are produced, it is my impression that the classic andquille is oftenest stuffed with tripe cut into strips, the classic andouillette by tripe finely chopped; but there are numerous exceptions in both cases.

It is andouillette rather than endouille which has inspired a sort of cult. If you see in the window of a French restaurant a mysterious sign reading "A.A. A.A.A.," you have come upon one of its temples. The letters stand for Association Amicale des Amateurs d'Authentiques An-douillettes (Priendly Association of Lovers of Honest-to-God An-doublettes), a group of five food Princess of Troyes/ Of the blackwriters, formed at the suggestion of gastronomie author Francis Amuntegul, which devotes itself to tracking down the best ondouillettes served in the most satisfying fashion and awards the restaurants which offer them the certificate which entitles them to display the AAAAA card. Their standards are severe. In ten years they have found only 30 restaurants in all France worthy of the certificate.

The andouillette probably eppeared on the gastronomic scene nfter the andouille. The word in any case is a couple of centuries rounger; the first document in which it oceurs dates from 1451. It is prebably the only sausage that has ever saved a city from mil-itary disaster. The most famous ondouillettes of France are those of Troves, which has been called the capital of French sansage making." At the end of the 16th century. Royalist troops attacking Troves took its St. Denis quarter. which happened to be the one where the andoullettes were made. The victors paused to stuff themselves, so abundantly that the garrison had time to organize a counterattack. The Royalists. probably too somnolent after overeating to fight well, were massacred.

All the andoutlette makers of Troyes do not follow the same formula slavishly; but it appears that in general andovillettes in Troyes are stuffed with tripe cut into strips, as for andoville, though the strips are narrower. The seasoning may consist only of "the four simple spices" (pepper, ginger, clore, nutmeg) or more complicated combinations. some of which include herbs as well as spices. Tropes andouillettes always include some meat from the neck of the pig, where the finest fat is found. Onc might be tempted to attribute to this the velvety smoothness of the Troyes sausage, if it were not for the fact that Caen andouillettes, which ere the antithesis to the Troyes variety, being dry and sharp, include neck meat too.

The late chef-gourmet-writer Prosper Montagné maintained mysteriously that Troyes andouillette was made exclusively of mutton. This baffles the citizens of Troyes today, but they comment cautiously that Troyes makes, and has made, many kinds of sausage, and that It is not out of the question that Montagné once encountered there a for and willette.

The andouillettes of Troyes moved the 19th-century chanson Charles Monselet to call it his "dear angel," and to apostrophice it thus:

Siffle, crève et larmoie, Ma Princesse de Troyes Au flanc de noir zébré. Mon appétit te garde Un tombeau de moutarde De Maille ou de Vert-Pré. (Whistle, split and weep./ My striped flank./ My appetite is saving for you/ A tomb of mustard/ Maille or Vert-Pré.) As the last two names are brands of mustard, it would seem that the commercial already existed in the 19th century.

Though the opinion that Troyes makes the best andovillettes in France is nearly unanimous, agreement disappears at this point. Some experts think andouillette is best eaten poached in white wine, as it is in Pouilly and Macon, perhaps with the addition of shallots, as in Chabits and the Lyons region. The majority, however, probably agree with Amuntegul that Troves andovillettes should be eaten only grilled. Grilled Troyes andouillettes, almost everyone insists, should be accompanied by a strong mustard-but in Troyes itself it is served with a dressing of chopped parsley, plus, sometimes, a slight addition of garlic, added at the end of the cooking. The late "Prince of Gastronomes." Curnonsky, a complete dissenter, ate Troyes andovillettes row, though he refused to consume those of nearby Bar-sur-Aube un-

Andouillette, wherever it comes from is more versatile in its eccompaniments than andouille. Like andouille, it is often served with mashed potatoes or warm apple sauce, but it also appears with broad beans, kidney beans, string beans, ientils, fried onions, purée of celery, purée of water

cress, chopped raw red cabbage, or even sorrel

Andouilletie is made throughout France; it would be difficult to say which is the best after that of Troyes. Contenders for the bonor would necessarily include Caen, already mentioned above: Cambrai, which makes it of calf's stomach lining cooked in a court bouillon and serves it grilled, with mustard and a dash of vinegar; Arras, where it is made of real tripe and is considered a festive dish, served grilled on holidays and at family reunions; Tonnerre, which has a number of specialties in the prepared meats category, but ranks its andoulliette first; and Epinal, better known in France as the producer of violently colored naire prints. In Touraine and Poltou, andousllettes are preserved by a light coating of lard.

In Strasbourg, the local variety of andouillette is grilled slowly and served bedded on sauerkrant, accompanied by boiled or steamed potatoes. Auvergne flavors Its andowillettes with Provencal herbs. Among also-rans whose andoxillettes are worth trying if yon come across them, are Chateaurenard, Chatillon-sur-Chalarenne. Azzy-le-Rideau, Vouvray, Montolre, Amiens, Quimperlé, Paris, Lyons—and Vire, capital of the andcrille, which smokes its andouillettes too. In Lourdes, tiny strings of andouillettes are made in the form of rosaries.

Alexandre Dumas wrote in his "Grand Dictionnaire de Cuisine" that the best andovillettes he had ever tasted in his life were those of Villers-Cotterets. No one else has echoed this opinion. Dumas was born in Villers-Cotterets.

commissioned a work from him shows Liebermann's willingness to gamble, and the success of completed work confirms once again the soundness of Liebermann's instinct.

Israel Eliraz, born in 1936 in Jerusalem, has made for Tal a on an ancient Talmudic legend. Ashmedal, king of the devile, inf-fers a cynical bet to the king of an unidentified country: If they trade places, Ashmedai can, claims, turn the country's peaceful, productive people into a warlike mob of killers. The king, trapped in an unhappy marriage, yearns to spend such a respite incognito with the woman he loves, an innkeeper who has borne him a daughter, and since he finds Ashmedal'e bet preposterous, he accepts. Year Later A. year later, Ashmedai turns back over to the king a country utterly destroyed by war, and the king, horrifled by what he has permitted, declines to become ting again. The queen denounces him, his people have him garroted, prop him onto his throne for a ghastly trial, and then an executioner beheads the corpse. Evi incarnate remains trium-

Arnold Schoenberg has provided the dominant infinence in Tal's music, but his preoccupation with rhythm lends it a vitality missing in most dodecaphonic works. A orchestral interiude which opens the second of the two acts, during which the large ersemble pantomimes the disasters of war, remains especially strong in the memory. Tal has also taken advantage of this house's extensive facilities for reproducing electronic music. Gary Ber-tini, also an Israeli, conducts all eid forces and holds them together with exemplary case and keeps tension high throughout the work's two-hour running time, Full Scope

Leopold Lindiberg has staged the work in a manner which allows full scope to the tragedy without making incongruous an occasional bit of vinegary Jewish humor. He shows especial mastery in deploying crowds. Dick Price's choreography makes an im-portant dramatic contribution to the story, and Zbynek Kolar, who designed the production, given the sombre story a fitting framework.

During Rolf Liebermann's years in Hamburg, he has created an opera com-ny in its own way unique in the entire world. One must hope that the French authorities will not welch on their promise to allow him a free hand when he takes over the nuce great Paris Opéra and seta about making it great once again.

Incidentally, the West German press seems not to have noticed it, but an additional characteristic Liebermann touch determined the date of the new work's world premiere. It fell on the 33d anniversary of the infamous Kristolinachi, when the Nazis pillaged Jewish establishments and set almost every synagogue in Germany aflame.

European Canal Chain to Cut Cargo Time, Cost GENEVA, (AP-DJ).—Some portions of a vast waterway network that will speed cargo among nine European nations ot lower costs are nearing completion.

Work is nearing completion at two key sections of the Rhine-Main-Danube route, which by 1981 is to form the main artery in a network planned to extend eventually from the North Sea to Lake Balkal in central Siberia.

The waterway will provide o high cargo capacity link between Rotterdam, the world's largest seaport, and Sulina, the Romanian Black Sea harbor, traversing or bordering nine European countries on its 3,500 kilometer (obout 2,200 mile) course. Rails, Roads Overburdened

Waterway projects are heing huit throughout Europe, Low haulage coats, large capacity of vessels and low manpower requirements are principal factors, Also, European rail and road routes are often over-

The Soviet Union, aircody crisscrossed by some of the world's largest canal systems, is building on cast-west grid linking the Dnleper-Pripet-Bug connection with the Victula and Oder rivers and then, via East Germany's network, extending to Berlin and Hamburg, West Germany's largest North Sea outlet.

In France, oue plan calls for o link for seagoing vessels from the Atlantic ports to Marsellies on the Medicerranean. In Switzerland, experts are discussing construction of a materway that would connect the Rhine via three Saiss lakes with the Rhone that flows into the Mediterrancon,

The Rhine-Main-Danube connection is the furthest advanced of all projects of international concern. Canalization of the Main, the middle section, began in the last century. But the greatest strides in the project were made after World War II.

Now, two key sections are almost ready. Night Shipping Cuts Time

After seven years of work, a $400 million complex, including a hydroelectric and navigation system, will be commissioned soon at the Danube's Iron Gates Gorge, on the Yugoslav-Romanian border. A 60-meter about 190 feets high dam harnesses the Danube, which has a total 2,850-kilometer (obout 1,780 mile) course. Locks can take ships of up to 5,000 tons. Increased safety permits night shipping that cuts total time of transit through the Iron Gates to 30 hours from 120,

By the autumo of 1972, a canal linking the Moin and Danube in West Germany will have reached Nuremberg, where construction of a large port is in its final phase. Work then will coacentrate on the most difficult stretch. To reach the Danube at Regensburg, the canal is to cross a mountain range. Ships will have to climb 94 meters cabout 300 feets and then descend 73 meters (about 260 feet) on a stretch of less than 140 kilometers (about 87 miles). Five locks are to be used.

West German postgar expenditures in the Rhine-Main-Danuhe project will total come 25 billion deutsche marks by 1981. The includes some 1,5 billion DM for the Nurembern-Regensburg stretch. But a study prepared for the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe here predicts the net return from the investment will be almost double the outlay by the year 2000

because of transport cost savings, contribution to national income and water supply

The area that will be served by the waterway includes a'l EEC countries-except Italy-Austria, Yugostavia and most countries of the East bloc Comecon organication. Trade between these regions has been growing sharply during the past

It serves Rotterdam and the Belgian centers of Antwerp and Girent, develop-ing into a single, giant industrial district. It reaches the Ruhr, largest center of industrial concentration in Europe, and the heavily industrialized Rhine - Main area south and west of Frankfurt.

In Austria, it will serve the vast from and steel works at Linz plus many other industrial plants that have sprung up in the region since the war. The lorgest oil refinerics of Czechoslovakia and Hungary are also on the banks of the Danube.

In Yugoslavia, the new Belgrade port will have a sharply increased capacity. Romania's growing petrochemical industry will be linked. Bulgaria will have a new facility for shipping its experts of agricultural produce to Western Europe. The Sovict Union, which ships large quantities of coal and ore via the Danube, will be a najor user. More than one-fourth of the present Danube fleet's total carrying capa-city of almost 3 million tons flies the Soviet flag.

Eventually, the waterway could handle up to 40 million tens. The nonstop veyage for a celf-propelled barge from Rotterdam to Sulina would take 11 days. A pushed barge train would make ! in 14 days

Frank Forster, chairman of Sporry Rand, have announced that Sperry Rand's Univac division would "assume responsibility for RCA's existing general-pur-pose computer customers in the United States, Canada and Mexico." They added: "The agreement also involves maintenance and service agreements."

Mr. Forster and Mr. Sarnoff said that under tentative terms of the agreement Sperry would pay RCA "approximately $70 million" on Jan. 2, 1973, plus a varying percentage of future revenues over a five-year period.

Current estimates are that the total value of these succeeding payments will amount to between $30 million and $50 million, RCA

Natural Gas Exports Curtailed by Canada found a deficiency of 11 trillion new reserves in the Northwest

By Jay Walz

OTTAWA, Nov. 22 (NYT) .-The Canadian National Energy Board has announced that Canada's growing energy needs required that no additional supplies of notural gas by made svallable for export "of the present time." The announcement late last week came in the decision dismissing the applications of six companies planning to increase exports to the United States. where the gas chortage for powering industry and heating homes is growing acute. The energy board clied Con-

VW Plans New Mini Auto With Its Audi-NSU

HAMBURG, Nov. 22 (AP) .-Volkswagen will develop a new mine auto with an engine capacity of less than 1,000 cubic centimeters, VW chairman Rudolph Lelolng disclosed today. Mr. Leiding, interviewed by the news magazine Der Spiegel, said the new model would be built by VW and its major subsidiary, Audi-NSU.

Asked when the car would be introduced, he replied: "I can-not name the year and I don't want our competitors to adjust themselves" to the new small car Company informants sald the car, which is a likely competitor to small autos made by Fint, may be ready for introduction by 1974. They said it appeared likely that both VW and Audi would market versions of the car.

Mr. Leiding did not disclose details of the car. He did say that in the future VW will emphasize the concept of a frontwheel-driven car and the watercooled engine. With the exception of the VW

The decision, coming 14 months after the board licensed the export of large quantities of gas to the United States, was unexpected. To some observers it carried strong nationalist overtones. While during hearings the applicants streeted the U.S.'s dire need for more gas, particularly in wintertime, many witnesses representing nationalist and ecological organizations in this country opposed the opplications.

The policy of the government of Prime Minister Please Elliott energy sources should be avellable for export only when the government had determined that reserves were adequate to meet this country's foresecable needs. Relations Strained

Also, the decision comes at a time when U.S.-Canadian relations are strained by President Nixon's new economic program that Canadians see as "protectionist" and harmful to husiness. The U.S. 10 perecent import sur-charge is blamed for making worre Canada's already high unemployment. There has also been mounting resistance to U.S. proposals for a continental energy program in which Canado might bargain its vast oil and gas recources for trade concessions. Talks Open on Oil Producers' Claim Of Revenue Loss VIENNA, Nov. 22 (Reuters),-Persian Gulf oil producing states opened a new round of talks with 20 Western oil groups here today over the claim for compensation for loss of earnings caused by the effective devaluation of the dollar.

The Gulf states are pushing for n price increase of around 7 per-cent a barrel. They say this is necessary to offset losses of millions of dollars a month since President Nixon introduced his ecenomie controls.

The oil producing states, who are paid mainly in dollars and sterling, say these measures in effect devalued the dollar and made their imports from Japan, West Germany and some other countries more costly.

Western oil groups are said be thinking in terms of a 2 percent rise per barrel of oil.

the desire to protect a snare of the market." Could Lose Momentum Mr. Gainsburgh said, however, that the increase in capital appropriations could lose its momentum if control of profits stemming from the guideline laid down by the administration's price commission interferes with the obility of industry to finance its expansion plans in the months immediately ahead. Durable goods industries in the third quarter posted o 22 percent gain over the second quarter. The iron and steel sector, however, failed to show an increase. Transportation equipment, both outomotive and nonsutomotive primary nonferrous metals, fabricated metal products, instruments and photographic equipment, and stone, clay and glass products all recorded an increase. In the nondurable goods sector. the petroieum industry posted a 42 percent increese in appropriations.

Here is a recent Flow Of Money picture for Fairchild Camera. Look at it closely because it tells a very profitable story. One year ago FCI had very large MINUS Flow Of Money. As a result of the bear market in 1970, mony securities had beary negative FOM readings in the Autumn. By December 2, 1970, Fairchild's Flow Of Maney was showing steady improvement. Far six weeks as the stock stayed in the low 20's our FOM analysis was indicating a for more bullish pattern low 20's aur FOM analysis was indicating a for more builtish pattern than anly a few months before.

By Jaquary 20, 1971, Fairchild's FOM was once agaia POSITIVE. The stock was now selling at 25 1/4, IN ONLY 2 WEEKS FCI WAS UP TO 32 5/8 AND ITS FLOW OF MONEY WAS AT 79 PLUS!

Doring the next 5 months FCI rose about 50% in price. Thea both FOM and price topped out together. Unfortunately with price, you only know it topped out after many weeks pass. With FOM we saw immediately that hig money was no langer flowing into the atock. WHEN FOM STARTS DECLINING SHARPLY—beware!—Our FOM reading af 161 accurred an June 2, 1971. Faur weeks later it was DOWN to 118. Except for two weeks since then aur Flow Of Money has been VERY 8EARISH for Fairchild Camera.

The big decline in price, over 50%, that has followed this drop in FOM was no surprise to anyone following this analysis. One need not wait for FOM to turn NEGATIVE (as it did on October 27) to start selling. In FCI the bandwriting was an the wall for months!

wait for FOM to turn NEGATIVE (as it did on October 27) to start selling. In FCI the bandwriting was an the wall for mouths!

This is just ane example of how the Flow Of Money has worked in the post. Our bi-weekly publication courtains 280 pages of FOM analysis, covering 1,960 listed American securities. Each stock shows its own 52-week history of prica movement and FOM, just as clearly as the anademonstrated here for FCI. In addition to seeing the FOM for every stock, our Sammary Reports on FOM activity give a valuable insight into future market direction. (Is money flowing INTO the market or OUT of it?)

OUT of it?)

In order to judge for yourself the REAL value of our FOM report, you must see and study and of our complete issues. We will air mail you that latest issue of the Flow Of Mancy for only $20. In addition you will receive a tree copy of our 16-page brochare entitled "UNOERSTANDING AND USING THE FLOW OF MONEY" which clearly demonstrates and explains the working of FOM. Many examples of current situations are shown and explained in this information booklet. It also tells you how you can continue to receive the Flow Of Maney report every other week, or even monthly at a NEW, anhelievable law price. (If you would like to receive the brochura aniz, sand $1.00.)

Investment research: how much should it weigh?

the pound. We don't think you should get the same format, or the same amount of fact and detail every time you ask for investment information. Investment research has to meet your needs. First, it must be based on a good investment idea, and be the result of in depth analysis. Next, it should be sensitive to the markets, as accurate and timely as possible, and as broad or as brief as you require.

THE DIMENSIONS OF INVESTMENT RESEARCH

Research information can range from a scholarly study to a quick synopsis of basic facts. Today you may want considerable detail on one company, tomorrow you may want a general picture of whole markets or industries. The next day you may want quick opinions on 20 different companies. You want this range of information, and you want it fast.

FIRST, CONSIDER YOUR NEEDS

At one extreme, a Merrill Lynch report can be a long document produced by one of the senior specialists in the world's largest securities research division. Merrill Lynch research operations are established in New York, Los Angeles,. Toronto, Geneva and Tokyo. Research Division headquarters in New York alone employs about 300 people. The industry specialists travel thousands of miles each year to talk with companies' top management and to see their operations for themselves. The information they collect is, of course, invaluable to Merrill Lynch's portfolio analysts—and their reports are available to customers. Indeed, private meetings with these specialists can be arranged during their periodic travels—or when you are in New

At the other extreme, you might need a quick opinion on a stock or a selection

Good investment research doesn't come by ? of stocks, Merrill Lynch's opinion retrieval system is, as you would imagine, computerized. Your Merrill Lynch executive uses high-speed direct wire to consult a bank of opinions on about 2,500 stocks, mostly U.S. and Canadian, but including many European and Japanese securities. These are continuously up-dated by the securities research specialists.

The reply also comes by direct wire. It gives an opinion of whether to buy, sell or hold. Categorization of the stock as speculative, growth or income. An indication of dividend and past earnings, and often a brief comment on recent major developments in the company's business and an estimate of future earnings.

Some European institutions are using the system ('QRQ') for 20-30 opinions a day. It is obviously not a definitive research tool but they find it a great help in selecting situations worth further enquiry—in which case they can call on the whole range of Merrill Lynch's background report and studies.

"INVESTIGATE, THEN INVEST"

This has been the Merrill Lynch motto from the beginning, when the world of finance was rather slower and simpler than it is today.

Today, "investigation" means a gigantic investment, not only in obtaining information and opinions but the means to communicate them rapidly throughout the world. It must be a sign of Merrill Lynch's strength, as well as its size, that last year when a cloud of uncertainty hung over the stockmarket Merrill Lynch spent 6.9 million dollars on its world-wide research division. This sustained level of investigation means that your Merrill Lynch executive is better prepared to give you the information you need in the detail you ask for, rather than reports of identical scope and length.

Not all investment needs are the same.

CONTROL TO THE SECOND SECOND

BLONDIE

BRIDGE

By Alan Truscott

In the recent Carlbbean Championships played in Barbados, Jamaica matched a last-minute victory. Venezuela was second and Panama third with teams representing 15 areas in com-petition. The open team title went to Trinidad and the open pairs to Panama.

On the disgramed deal a brilliant opening lead by Felix Shalom of Jamaics helped his team to defeat St. Croix. He overcalled two diamonds when South opened a weak no-trump, and North bld two no-trump, ending the auction.

The right opening lead against no-trump with West's diamond holding may be the ace, the queen or a lower card, according to the circumstances. The ace is likely to be best if West has a sure side entry, for he can judge how to continue the suit after seeing the dummy. If partner has an entry, the low lead will be effective whenever the declarer has the king, or when dummy has a doubletou king. In this case, Shalom correctly inferred that North held the diamond king, since he had bid

South put on dummy's diamond king, a poor play since it left the defense with communication in the suit. Five rounds of clubs followed, causing West some emberrassment. He parted with one heart, two spades and one diamond, leaving this position:

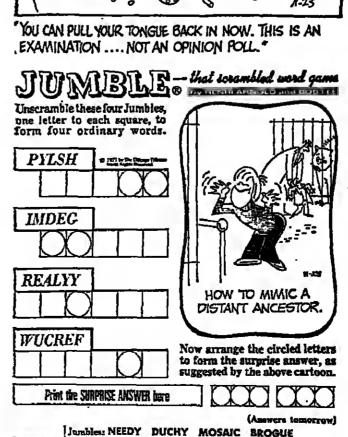

South exited with a diamond At the 10th trick, he unguarded the spade king in order to keep the ace-queen of hearts. West put his partner in with the spade ace, and a heart lead gave West the setting trick with the king.

The Life of Lady Randolph Churchill Vol. II. The Dramatic Years 1895-1921 By Ralph G. Martin. Prentice-Hall. 498 pp. $8.95.

RALPH MARTIN tantalizingly left us hanging at the end of Volume I: Will Jennie marry her true love, Count Kinsky? How will Winston and Jack turn out? Will the syphilis be passed on? And what happened to the many glittering comets, such as the Prince of Wales, the Marquis de Breteuil, the beautiful Jerome sisters and those eccentric Mariboroughs?

It's all there in glorious detail in Volume II. If you couldn't put down Jennie I, you'll find Jennie II just as compulsive read-

Anthor Martin has an un-matched eye for the good vignette, the bon mot. Take, for instance, the young and beautiful Duchess of Manchester, "...the kind of woman who, while riding in a carriage to a court ball, decided that her stays were too tight and that she was going to remove her corset." And so she did, writes Martin, "twisting and wrenching it out over her breast, much to the astonishment of her escort." There was also the incomparable Mrs. Patrick Campbell who, after an illustrious stage career and many boudoir battles, was heard to sigh while reflecting on the state of marriage: "Ah, the peace of the double bed after the hurly-burly of the chaise longue." Best of all, the author has the good sense to let the characters speak for themselves through their letters. The value of letter writing is not that it preserves words but that it records views, sumbitions and emotions of the moment that no amount of historical hindsight or revision can alter. Thus a reader can follow the often zig-zag pattern of a person's thinking. At this, the author excels, and it makes for good drama and fascinating reading.

However, those who read and loved Jennie I may still find Jen-nie II a disappointment. It has nothing to do with Martin's masterful treatment of the subject but with the nature of the material itself.

Jennie I was a grand Victorian tale, even better than fiction. It is difficult to believe that all those incredible people, doing those extraordinary things, actually lived—with their vast country houses, platoons of servants, endless parties and trips abroad, exquisite love affairs, and death in Gothic proportions. Properly, the subtitle to Jennie I was "The Romantic Years." For a moment, the reader could leave this dreary world of today and leap into make-believe. As Jen-nie's grandson, Randolph, would escapist stuff."

But Volume II is different. It is called "The Dramatic Years." No doubt some readers will view Jennie's later life as such, but I believe most will react as I did: That those years were pure tra-gedy. But even for those, such as I, who love tragic sagas, as opposed to those Victorian, ro-mantic or Gothic, there is still one rub to Volume II: Reality rears its ghastly head. Looking at Jennie's life as whole, there is no doubt that the death of Lord Randolph in 1895

marked a turning point. From that moment on, life was mostly all downhill. Jennie had money problems which were never adequately resolved. She took on a succession of lovers, nearly all c whom were forgettable and vasti inferior to her pre-1895 conquests She married twice again to me of decent enough character b decidedly interior talent. She win turn, an unsuccessful publish a thwarted playwright and isayist, and only an occasion doer of good works. The auth builds a case that Jennie's (vorable reviews were due to h artistic talents, but it is cill she was praised simply becs she was Lady Randolph Che

I got the feeling that she in terribly lonely," observed it is Roosevelt Longworth to as of Martin It was an und in a ment Jennie's friends tich in die off; she became at both of a bore, society in to bely ignored her, and she essibilit to be an embarrassmened by her be an emparation y is . She family in her later y desiduce look that can still be second in the faces of many elderly nurchills today. One of her last, yers was took on a wild and dea a common soldier. Se died a bizarre death and was buried with no unusual public notice. Lord Randolph Churchill, with his syphilis, died by the yard; Jennie, in contrast, died by inches.

It is not a comforting story Jennie's beauty, vitality and magnetism, her dedication to furthering the careers of her sons, her quickness of tongue, and her extravagant friends and living habits inevitably draw the reader to her in affection. But those who seek the escape or romance of Volume I will not find it here. The more dominating realities of Jennie's later life-lack of money, failure, boredom and loneliness strike too close to home.

Ralph Martin is to be praised for his work. No doubt it will be another best-seller. He is to be forgiven his few errors of fact (it is, for instance, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, not "Herbert"; and Jennie's nickname "Black Jane" came from the gray cast of her skin, not the color of her hair).

But, unfortunately, the author will probably be unjustly cursed by many readers because he had the temerity to be honest and let the facts of life intrude upon their own private romance with a most extraordinary lady.

Mr. Thayer spent a year as research assistant to Randolph Churchill, working on the biography of his father. Sir Winston C The Washington Post.

Dallas Grabs Everything Away From Washington

By Red Smith

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22 (NYT). -So Dalias, which replaced Washington in the American League late in the baseball season, now has taken this beleaguered city's spot at the head of the National Football Con-ference's Eastern Division, Except for five heavenly Sundays when the Redskins won 'em all, it has been an autumn to try the souls of the most sanguine of the capital's sports fans, even in-cluding that incurable buff who lives at 1800 Pennsylvania Ave-

This was going to be the Red-skins greatest year since Sammy Baugh pitched them to a divisional title in 1945, but a funny thing happened to them on the way to the Super Bowl.

Undefeated and practically immortal on Oct. 24, they took a lead of 17-6 over Kansas City in the first half but at the same time lost Jerry Smith and Charley Taylor with injuries. Taylor, their best wide receiver, and Smith, the "gut" man at tight and who got them the touchdowns they needed most, had both won all-pro distinction. Without these two, the Skins illman to return to managed to lose that Kansas beaten anybody since except New Orleans, a soft-biting team, in the NPC Western Division. Washington hasn't scored a touchdown in eight periods of play, and yesterday's 13-0 shutout by Dallas made it four lost weekends out of fire. Until their dream of empire began to turn brown around the edges, the Redskins were regarded as geriatric wonders whose inspiring example was doing more for the aged than medicare. George Allen, a coach who is addicted to cliches as some men are addicted to the bottle, refers to them affectionately as "my old geerers," because Jack Pardee is 35, Boyd Dowler and Rich Petitbone 33 and Bill Kilmer 31. However, the average age of yesterday's starting eleven was only 28.13, and that may have been the Skins' downfall. These callow youths were no match for the old sait who engineered their defeat, Roger Staubach, a retired naval officer of 29. Roger was a submariner after he got out of Amapolis and a sub quarterback after that. After the Cowboys had brought off the remarkable coup of losing to the Redskins, the New Orleans Saints and the Chicago Bears with Staubach and Craig Morton alternating at quarterback, Tom Landry reluctantly installed the old tar as regular. He was reinctant because Staubach is a scrambler, and Landry considers it a crime against nature for the quarterback to terback keeps running," the coach says, "eventually he's gonna get hurt." Furthermore, he contends, on most of the 27 times Staubach ran this season, there was an eligible pass receiver open. Well Roger ran five times yesterday, scampered 29 yards for the game's only touchdown and wound up with 49 yards. That "The FBI man didn't say anything to my mother about a cabinet appointment. But he did want to know if I ever played with Daniel Elisberg as a kid." Mothballer said

"It's just a smokescreen, Clyde," the Los Angeles Times man said. They always ask that when they're considering somebody for secretary of defense."

'My mother said they also went around to the neighbors and asked them if I had ever had any strong feelings about Cuba." "That means you're heing put up for head of the CIA," a UPI photographer said. "With Dick fielms being moved upstairs, they're probably looking for a new chief of operations."

"It's possible," Mothballer said, "but my mother said she caught two of the FBI men going through her trash basket last

"That means you're op for an environment job," the NBC man "I wish I could be as optimistic as you guys," Mothballer said.
"Suppose the FBI was asking questions to intimidate me?"

The Chicago Sun-Times man was shocked. "Bite your tongue, Mothballer." he cried. "The Nixon administration would never stoop to a trick like that, even if they disagreed with every word you wrote."

"He's correct, Clyde," the Newsweek correspondent said. "Attorney General Mitchell would resign before he'd allow the White House to intimidate a newspaperman "

"J. Edgar Hoover wouldn't stand for it," the New York Post man put in, "I guess you're right," Mothballer nodded, 'T'd better call my mother back and reassure her, She just doesn't understand how

Birgit Nilsson, Queen of the Wagnerians

By Donal Henahan

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (NYT).—Birgit NESson, undisputed queen of Wagnerian singers in her generation, enjoys scaling vocal heights, but no other kind. So, the Swedish soprano was upset when she found recently that the Metropolitan Opera's mechanically spectacular new production of "Tristan and Isolde," in which she appeared Friday ("She sang the role with the unfaltering flow only she can command," said Harold C. Schonberg in The New York Times), called for her to be hoisted high above the stage on a hidden elevator.

Hoping to calm her fears, the director told Miss Nilsson: "It will make you feel like a queen." The diva was not impressed. "For that," she replied haughtily, "I don't need an elevator.

Like her vocal prowess, Miss Nilsson's broad good humor is a byword in opera circles. She will live in opera's anecdotal history if only for once having listed Rudolf Bing, the Metropolitan's general manager, on her income tax as a dependent. Her way of protesting Herbert von Karajan's insistence on gloomy stage lighting in his Wagner productions here was to confront the autocratic condoctor backstage while wearing a miner's helmet, complete with lantern, to which Brünnhilde's traditional Valkyrie wings had been affixed. Since her debut at the Stockholm opera 25 years ago. Miss Nilsson's apparently tireless, infallibly on-pitch voice has brought her a virtual monopoly in the big Wagnerian roles. Her place in the history books is secure, along with such Wagnerian heroines as Lilli Lehmann, Lillian Nordica, Olive Fremstad. Johanna Gadski, Frida

stad. Miss Nilsson has even felt eecure enough to engage in feuds with Von Karajan, perhaps opera's most powerful conductor and impresario. Several years ago, in response to his detailed, twp-page cahle-gram offering her a long list of new productions, Miss Nilsson sent the maestro a curt two-word cable: "Busy, Blrgit."

Leider, Helen Traubel and Kirsten Flag-

Their feud broke into print two years ago when the soprano cancelled several letropolitan engagements because she felt Von Karajan wanted to work another so-prano into her favorite parts. "When the birds aren't happy they don't sing," she

Such Nilsson moods pass quickly, ordinarily. Friends insist the singer is basically a shy person who can take half an hour to warm up to someone she meets for the first time.

But she is not shy about money. She appreciates her worth. "She never quibbles about fees," according to a person who often deals with her professionally. "She simply takes the highest one the house offers, whatever it is. As a matter of pride she won't take less."

Although the fees actually paid to leading opera singers are shrouded in a secrecy that it would take the CIA to penetrate it was rumored several seasons ago that Miss Nilsson was getting $5,800 a performance at the Met, and about $5,000 in Vienna. She sings 60 to 65 opera performances a season. Six or seven other Met singers are believed to be in the top-fee bracket, now officially pegged at $4,000.

According to several musical reference books, Marta Birgit Svensson was born in the farming town of West Karup in southern Sweden, on May 17, 1918. (Like many singers, Miss Nilsson is determinedly vague about such statistics.) Her father, Nils, had wanted a son, so in the Swedish tradition Birgit was called Nilsson, She began to sing before she could walk ("I sang early and walked late," she explains) and at age 5 or 6 was taken to Stockholm to entertain on a radio program,

Miss Nilsson recalls that on the radio she sang "risqué farm songs," which were all she knew as a child. A pastor in a nearby town encouraged her to go to Stockholm to study, and eventually she did so, over her father's stern objections. Nils Svensson thought a girl's place was on the farm milking cows and using her healthy, God-given voice to call the pigs to dinner.

After her Stockholm debut in 1946, her fame spread quickly. She appeared in 1951 in England's Glyndebourne Festival but her international career really dates from an engagement to sing Brimnhilde in "Die Walkure" and the title role in "Salome" at the Munich Opera in the 1954-55 season. In the next few years she established herself as the outstanding dramatic soprano of the day at Bayreuth, Vienna, London, San Francisco and Chicago, In 1958, her stentorian singing in "Turandot" created a sensation at La Scala in Milan.

Then, belatedly, after one rejection by Rudoif Bing, Miss Nilsson came to the Metropolitan making her debut in "Tristan and Isolde" on Dec. 18, 1959. Ovations started at the first intermission and grew into hysterical demonstrations. The story made Page 1 of The New York Times the next

Her voice's heroic size and exciting timbre are a vocal teacher's dream, but Miss Nilsson boasts that she is largely self-taught. She has had no vocal teacher or coach for more than 20 years. She disdains the hours of pre-performance warming up that some singers find necessary, settling for five or 10 strenuous minutes at a piano just before curtain time. The soprano has been married for 22 years to a Swedish businessman, Bertil Niklasson. They have no children. The other day, Rudolf Bing was trying to persuade Miss Nilsson to sing the beheading scene from "Salome" at a forthcoming Met gala. The general manager promised that he would serve his own head to her on a silver platter if that would win her over. Miss Nilsson hesitated, obviously interested. He then offered to add something to the deal: the head of his successor, Göran Gentele. Miss Nilsson smiled a queenly smile of approval, "It's always good to have something in reserve," feat that eluded Max Conrad she told the importunate general manager. when his plane developed engine But she still has not agreed to sing. trouble. In quest of another "first,"
